There are few in the field of medical simulation and resuscitation who can claim the same depth and breadth of experience as Steve. With his clinical background as a Resuscitation Officer at Derby Hospital and Queens Hospital, Burton-on-Trent (UK), he was an early adopter of simulation and has been a prominent advocate of simulation training in support of patient safety initiatives within healthcare.

In transferring his ‘frontline’ knowledge to industry, Steve brings valuable insights to the MSE Group to help us drive customer focused solutions that substantially address the real needs of our customers, as they strive to deliver the very best in educational outcomes.
